Powering the mobile life with Globe

For the web-happy among us, the mobile life is the only one worth living. This whirlwind existence is a high-speed combination of personal, social and professional currents that change on a dime and keep us moving in both our real and virtual lives. Only a true leader like Globe can make the mobile life possible by blurring the line between the online and offline experience. With an unrivaled array of mobile data services and devices that enable you to find the rich content you crave, only Globe can power your online dreams and pave the way for the true mobile life thru speedy internet hookups that make every moment you live as real as it gets.

Whether you're a nonstop Tweeter, a habitual Googler or a casual gamer, only Globe gets you online in a flash with the widest range of top-of-the-line devices combined with the most affordable mobile surfing plans. Smartphone fans and tablet addicts alike can now surf around town with just their Globe SIM and their pick of Globe data plans.

For as low as ₱499 a month, you can get a spanking-new Samsung i5503 or a Huawei Ideos U8150. A ₱999 monthly Globe plan gets you a Samsung S5570 or the soon-to-be-available Huawei S7 tablet, while ₱1799 a month can get you a Samsung S5830. And if you're a web pro, the revered Samsung Galaxy Tab can be yours from Globe for just ₱2499 a month. All plans come with a full 30-day trial of Super Surf on your brand new gadget, so you can take your pick and always come away satisfied.

But if you already have the smartphone of your dreams, all you need to do is get your hands on one of Globe's best-value surfing plans. If your webaholic tendencies keep you online around the clock, then try Super Surf, where all-day surfing comes at a shockingly affordable price of ₱50 for one day, ₱220 for five days and only ₱999 for 30 days. Now if you prefer being able to surf at will and stop whenever you feel like it, the consumable mobile internet of Power Surf is for you. For as low as ₱15, Power Surf will get you an hour of browsing that you can spread out over a whole day. If that's not enough, try 3 mobile net hours valid for a day, for just ₱30, or 5 hours that you can use over three days, for only ₱50. Only Globe lets you surf without unhappy surprises; you always know exactly how much you're spending and you can use your hang time any way you want.

And once you're hooked up to Globe, you can surf away and get easy-peasy access to over 200,000 of the coolest mobile applications that will have you coasting through cyberspace for hours on end, from gigantic app store GetJar. Just visit m.globe.com.ph on your Globe mobile phone and click on Free Apps to take your pick from hundreds of thousands of applications. Games, entertainment, productivity and social networking apps are all there at the tap of a key. Pick and choose as many or as few as you like and amuse yourself any way you want.

If you're feeling playful, use your Globe mobile phone to help the Angry Birds seek revenge on nefarious egg-stealing pigs or wage Mafia Wars and stealthily manage your criminal empire. Give your stalker something to do by trumpeting your location via Foursquare, or take to Facebook and Twitter to sound off on your every mood swing. Skype will hook you up with faraway friends, while Nimbuzz and EBuddy will keep you chatting with pals from all over.

With Globe's array of mobile internet deals, you can get the coolest devices, the most affordable web surfing options and all the apps you ever wanted, to keep you busy all day and all night. The mobile life is within reach only from Globe, and you can live it the way you want, with the device you want, the plan you choose, and the apps you crave. Surf on your terms, any which way you want, because Globe has got you covered.

WOW PALAWAN — President Aquino, with Puerto Princesa Mayor Edward Hagedorn behind him, explores the Puerto Princesa Subterranean River National Park in support of the campaign to have it selected as one of the Seven Wonders of Nature, during a visit on Feb. 9. The 8.2-km underground river is on the Unesco List of World Heritage Sites for its beautiful pristine tropical forest, spectacular limestone formations, interesting wildlife, pristine white sand beaches and unspoiled natural beauty. The waterway is reputed to be the longest navigable underground river in the world.

Stopping mining altogether better for PH, says eco group

PRESIDENT Aquino's decision to cancel mining applications in Palawan is a welcome development, but it is not enough to stop the destruction of the province's rare resources, according to the Kalikasan People's Network for the Environment (PNE).

"There is also a need to put a stop to ongoing large-scale foreign mining projects in Palawan and the rest of the country," said Clemente Bautista Jr., national coordinator of Kalikasan PNE.

"Large-scale foreign mining projects—including those approved but not yet functioning—all over the country should be cancelled in order to save not only Palawan but the whole country from environmental destruction and human rights violations caused by the mining operations," Bautista said in a statement.

The cancellation of mining applications would actually have little effect on Palawan, he said. The destruction and degradation from ongoing mining projects in the province would not stop with the rejection of new mining applications, Bautista said.

"Nor will the President's decision save the province from more destruction that will be caused by the future activities of mining projects that had been approved but were not yet operating," he added.

Earlier, Mr. Aquino directed that the more than 300 applications for mining claims pending at the Bureau of Mines should no longer be processed.

He also said that no applications would be approved if the projects are not endorsed by the communities where they are located.

Kalikasan said Palawan hosts several large-scale mining projects, including the Rio Tuba Nickel Mining, Coral Bay Nickel Mining, Berong Nickel, Macroasia Mining and MMI mining projects. These mining concessions cover 38,149 hectares in Palawan as of July 2010, the group said.

Rich in natural resources, the island province of Palawan is relatively undeveloped and offers a profusion of endemic wildlife, vast forests and rich and largely untapped mining resources.

'Metro Ko, Love Ko' program launched

By Tina G. Santos

THE METROPOLITAN Manila Development Authority (MMDA) on Saturday launched its new flagship program on urban renewal and transformation in the metropolis.

Dubbed as "Metro Ko, Love Ko," the program replaces "Metro Gwapo," former MMDA Chair Bayani Fernando's flagship program for Metro Manila.

"With 'Metro Ko, Love Ko,' we have a sense of ownership, because you love it, you will take care of it. Because you love it, you will sustain it," MMDA Chair Francis Tolentino said in an interview during the program's launch in Taguig yesterday.

Cleanliness and discipline

Although the program covers everything from traffic decongestion, urban housing, flood control and disaster management, Tolentino said "Metro Ko, Love Ko" will first be centered on cleanliness and instilling discipline among metro residents particularly the so-called "[illegible]."

"We want to mentally participative and people-centric approaches by involving communities and other stakeholders," he said. "If we proceed with this antilittering campaign as one, the message we send to the public is that we mean business."

The campaign will promote the intensified implementation of Republic Act 9003, the Ecological Solid Waste Management Act of 2000 and MMDA Regulation No. 96-009, the Anti-Littering Ordinance.

Since September 2010, the MMDA has apprehended over 35,000 litterbugs in Metro Manila.

Positive solution

MMDA General Manager Corazon Jimenez sees the campaign as a positive and mitigating measure to abate and avoid flooding by drastically reducing litter along clogged canals and waterways.

"Many solutions to our problems are simple and need not be expensive. Part of the 'Metro Ko, Love Ko' programs is an easy and sustainable approach towards effectively addressing Metro Manila's garbage and flood concerns," she said.

Over 2,000 workers, students and residents from the different local government units (LGUs) attended the program launch, while members of the Metro Manila Mayors' Spouses Foundation Inc. signed a declaration of support to Metro Ko, Love Ko.

MVP, Air21 boost Azkals

PHILIPPINE FOOTBALL got another shot-in-the-arm following the announcement of Air21 that it is pouring in P21 million over the next 10 years for its programs.

The announcement was made Friday night at the launch of the MVP Sports Foundation Inc. of business tycoon Manny V. Pangilinan, who also turned over a giant replica of an P80-million check to Philippine Football Federation president Mariano "Nonong" Araneta representing a 10-year commitment for the sport.

The funding from Air21, a giant freight forwarder owned by businessman-sportsman Bert Lina, will be coursed through the foundation.

PANGILINAN

LINA

Pangilinan hailed Lina's support and also urged the private sector to follow suit.

"It's a great contribution to complement what we've done so far," Pangilinan said. "We hope other companies will also join in. They are welcome. It's not just our exclusive province."

Lina said it is part of the advocacy of his companies to support sports, noting that his experience watching the AFC Challenge Cup game of the Philippine team against Mongolia at the Panaad Stadium in Bacolod was unforgettable.

"I think if we could make a good timeline, we can reach greater heights in football," said Lina, who also supports cycling and owns the Air21 Express in the PBA. "It was an amazing feeling watching the Philippine flag being raised. It gives us a lot of pride."

Araneta said he was "flabbergasted and overwhelmed" by the outpouring of support for football from the private sector.

"The pressure is now on us to deliver and to really show the sponsors that we will give glory to our country," he said.

Araneta also assured the PFF sponsors of transparency and vowed that the assistance to the PFF will be put to good use.

Eight sports

Pangilinan identified eight sports that the foundation will be supporting vigorously—basketball, boxing, cycling, taekwondo, badminton, tennis, running and football.

"We have set specific, reasonably ambitious, realistic and achievable goals for each sport," Pangilinan said.

Pangilinan stressed that the growing public interest and involvement in sports should push sports leaders to perform better.

"They should perform better because this country deserves more than what we've done so far and I think we in business should do our

DANIEL Burnham was the most prominent architect of his day to book the US and its colony, the Philippines.

Baguio rediscovers
Burnham in city beautiful exhibit

MALLGOERS at SM City Baguio had the rare opportunity to know more about Daniel Burnham, the great American architect after whom the popular park in Baguio was named for during the recent "City Beautiful" exhibit at SM City Baguio.

A joint project of the Metropolitan Museum of Manila and the SM Supermalls, the exhibit, which had Paulo Alcazaren as its curator, features Burnham and his works as well as old photos, maps and scale models of old Manila.

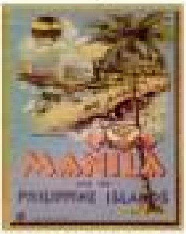

"City Beautiful's" two-week run at the SM City Baguio Atrium gave a glimpse of a man whom the park, which is considered the heart of Baguio, was named after. With its manmade lake with rowboats, as well as a children's playground, a skating rink, rose garden, and picnic grove, Burnham Park has been a favorite destination for families and friends for generations. During the run, residents, tourists, and students from Baguio's schools packed the exhibit to rediscover Burnham and his works.

Former Baguio City Mayor Rey Bautista, Baguio City Tourism Officer Benny Alberino, Metropolitan Museum Vice Chairperson Corazon Alvina and Exhibit Manager May Lyon Cruz shared honors in the ribbon cutting ceremony that launched the exhibit. SM VP for Marketing Millie Dizon, VP for Operations Ben Mateo, Regional Operations Manager Cesar Rosales, and Mall Manager Marc Jansen Pe joined them.

Daniel Burnham was commissioned by the American government to develop a plan for their new colony at the turn of the 20th century. Considered a genius at urban planning, he was co-author of the Chicago Plan that made around his home city, and subsequently worked on the planning of Cleveland, San Francisco, and the Mall of Washington DC.

SHARING honors with the ribbon-cutting ceremony are Metropolitan Museum Vice Chairperson Corazon Alvina, former Baguio City Mayor Rey Bautista, Exhibit Manager May Lyon Cruz, SM VP For Marketing Millie Dizon and Baguio City Tourism Officer Benny Alberino. Joining them are Mall Manager Marc Jansen Pe, VP for Operations Ben Mateo and Regional Operations Manager Cesar Rosales.

ONE of Manila's earliest tourism brochures

Burnham came to Manila with Pierce Anderson and stayed six weeks from December 1904 to January 1905, spending his Christmas holidays in Baguio. Impressed by his visit, he wrote in his report: "How wholly the orient has been like a dream. The lands, the people, and their customs are all very strange and of absorbing interest."

"There were five components of Burnham's plan. First, there was the development of the waterfront and the location for parks and parkways so as to give adequate opportunities for everyone in the city. Burnham also recommended the establishment of a street system, which would assure direct and easy communication from every part of the city to every other section and district.

Burnham, who had famously said, "make no little plans for they have no magic to stir men's blood," had grand visions for everything he designed. When he was in Manila in 1904, he developed the areas outside the walled city of Intramuros, with great emphasis on classical buildings and wide open spaces, taking into consideration the Spanish influence in the Philippines. It was from this plan that some of Manila's most iconic landmarks were built— the Post Office Building, the Customs Building, which is now the National Museum, as well as what we now know as Roxas Boulevard.

For Baguio, he "forced" a splendid geometric pattern amid rolling hills and winding roads. The city was built around what we now
